Introduction

Although the Constitution of the Republic of Poland, in Art. 53 declares the right to freedom of conscience and religion, however, various forms of attacks against believers, places of worship and religious symbols caused by their religious affiliation are reported in Poland. The following report shows 158 cases of violations of the right to religious freedom in Poland in the period from January 1 to December 31, 2021, which were made public through the media or reported to the Information and Consultation Center of the Laboratory of Religious Freedom. They are divided into seven categories:

- I. Physical attacks on believers (clergy or laity) – any behavior that directly harms the highest good: human life or health, as long as they are accompanied by a religious context (clergy, participants of services) and anti-religious motives are obvious¹;
- II. Destroying and profaning places of worship (churches, shrines, cemeteries) and
- III. Destroying and profaning religious symbols and objects of religious worship (crosses, figurines, pictures of Saints) – for the first type of behavior (destroying) qualify acts of vandalism, for the second type (profanation) – destroying with the intention of offending religious feelings; the type of crime also depends on the will of the perpetrator and the circumstances in which it was acted;
- IV. Restricting public profession of faith (malicious disturbance of the performance of religious acts: prayer, liturgy) – an event that prevents the public exercise of religious freedom: someone doesn't allow the faithful to enter the church; raises a false alarm before a service etc. Violations in the form of restricting public profession of faith may be associated with an act of destruction or profanation, but these elements do not have to be present.;

V. Discrimination based on religious beliefs (restriction of rights because of professed faith) – situations where people are deprived of their normal rights or limited in their rights solely because of their religious affiliation (in matters of contracts or employment relationships, etc.);

VI. Incitement to hatred on the basis of religious differences or insulting a group of people or a single person because of their religious affiliation – non-physical attacks on believers (individual or a group of people): hate speech or insulting people because of their religious affiliation (offensive words, incitement to hatred);

VII. Other – incidents that do not fall into the other categories of the act.

The violations noted in the report were collected by monitoring media reports: systematic review of websites, messengers and social networks in accordance with the adopted methodology, or were reported to the Information and Consultation Center via application forms or e-mails. The first stage of the research was to accept information about a given act, verify the incident as an act against freedom of religion, and confirm the authenticity of the report in at least two sources². Then, data on the perpetrators and the legal consequences imposed on them were collected, as long as they were available in the media space. The last step was to catalog the act according to the adopted categorization and to create a complete record of the incident, presented in tabular form, containing the following data:
